

Community Update Meeting: Queens Quay

Join us as we give an update on the Queens Quay Revitalization project, including a summary of the public feedback we've received and the changes we've made on the new street.

Since the revitalized Queens Quay opened on June 19, it's become a well-used street. The waterfront's main boulevard has been rebalanced to give cyclists, pedestrians, transit and cars their fair share of the space. We've been observing how cyclists, drivers and pedestrians are using the new street. In addition to our own observations, we've collected public feedback through an online form, email and social media. At this community update meeting, we'll present a report summarizing the public feedback we've collected, our own observations, and the adjustments we've made to reinforce some of the existing regulatory signs and signals on the new street. Members of the project team will also answer questions about the new street.
